The "MAXICO digital guide for co-creation" has been developed under Erasmus+ KA210-ADU Project "MAXICO - Maps of Experiences for thriving Communities" (acronym MAXICO) (Project No. KA210-ADU-239BA964) and it is licensed under Creative Commons.

Short summary of the practice: NOSTALGEO allows you to view old photos combined with today's Street View. You can also add and manage your own photos for free using the upload module. Do you have postcards or old photos of street views? With NOSTALGEO you can easily add your own collections and manage them online. Curious about what your neighbourhood used to look like? Search for old photos and postcards on the NOSTALGEO map yourself! By placing the old photos on the street view, NOSTALGEO creates a street view of the past. The past seems to come back to life.

Goal of the practice: The tool uses old and new photos to connect generations living in the same neighbourhood.

Target group: Citizens who have old photos, but also archives

Number of participants: Unlimited

Age of participants: Children Youth and Adults, 7+

Materials:

Photo

Archives

Internet connection

Duration of the practice: The time needed by participants to add their photos, archives on the platform.

Preparation: The method does not require any special preparation. All that is required is an Internet connection to access the tool.

Step-by-step guide: Take new or old pictures and share them online using the app's features and following the app's instructions.

Expected output: The app visualises how a place changes over time and seasons.

DOs, DONTs and ethical considerations of the method:

DOs of the method:

Do ask the owners for permission before posting a property

DONTs of the method:

Avoid sharing the same pictures several times, this would risk overloading the information

Avoid taking photos of objects that contain confidential information (names on letterboxes/doors) or people without their consent

Change the method brings to the communities: It gives a reflection of the past, possibly some closer connection to place or feeling at home.

Adaptation/Application of the method: The tool can be used for educational purposes, e.g. in combination with history or literature, culture-related topics.
